

Water First North Florida

- Pilot project is evaluating ozone pretreatment and treatment wetlands for removal of PFAS and other contaminants
- A siting study has been funded to identify potential wetland sites within SJRWMD
- The fate of the project is unclear and there has been widespread opposition
- If the project moves forward, it should include public involvement and rigorous scientific investigations