

Authors & Acknowledgments

Project Team

Energy and Environmental Economics, Inc. (E3) is a leading economic consultancy focused on the power sector in North America. For over 30 years, E3’s data driven analysis and unbiased recommendations have been utilized across the power industry by the utilities, regulators, government agencies, project developers, investors, and non-profit entities. E3 has offices in San Francisco, Boston, New York, Denver, and Calgary.

E3 Study Team (Alphabetized):

- + Linus Beer, Managing Consultant
- + Nicole Chan, Managing Consultant
- + Kushal Patel, Senior Partner
- + Paul Picciano, Managing Consultant
- + Shana Ramirez, Director
- + Isabelle Riu, Associate Director
- + Aneri Shah, Senior Consultant

Special thanks to Megan Ahern and Tristan Wallace for their contributions to the PJM analysis.

Acknowledgments

This report was funded by the Data Center Coalition, who reviewed the whitepaper prior to publication. E3 is an independent economic consulting firm, and all conclusions and recommendations are our own. The views and opinions expressed in this whitepaper do not necessarily reflect views and opinions of the sponsor or any of their individual members.

© 2026 Energy and Environmental Economics, Inc.

Table of Contents

+ Authors & Acknowledgments	1
+ Report in Brief	2
+ Executive Summary	3
+ Overview of Approach	5
+ Primer: How Power Markets Work	6
+ Primer: Retail Rate Design and Cost Allocation	8
+ How the Regulatory System Protects Customers	10
+ What the Data Shows: Data Center Rate Impacts to Date	15
+ Drivers of Rising Electricity Rates	20
+ Select Market Overviews	22
+ Conclusion	33
+ Appendix	34